about to pass a new 20th-century law which has a hole in it large enough for Sunday open-air sports to crawl through.

While it provides that "ne person shall keep open shop, warehouse, mechanical, mercantile or manufacturing ch as is required for the mainte-ince of public order, the preservation promotion of health or safety or necessary for the general welfare the community," and declares that hoever shall violate "the provisions this act, between the hours of its clock Saturday night and Sunday ght at 12 o'clock shall upon conof the community," and declares that whoever shall violate "the provisions of this act, between the hours of 12 o'clock Saturday night and Sunday night at 12 o'clock, shall upon conviction be fined not more than $50 or imprisoned in the county jail not less than 30 days, or both," the New Haven Loader calls attention to the fact young Cudahy, who was kidnapped by that the phrasing of the section with the phrasing of the section to the section with the phrasing of the section with the phrasing of the section with the phrasing of the section with the phrasi that the phrasing of the section with Pat Crowe. She knows that she has "the preservation or premotion of a bargain. health or safety, or is necessary for the general welfare of the community" fixes an open door which will ulti-mately result in "a continental Sun-

It is predicted that this law will no get the endorsement of both houses, and it should not. There seems to be license enough under the old law; and Sunday freedom doean't seem to be restricted enough to call for any new or more liberal enactment.

FOR A BLANKET BALLOT.

The New Haven Register calls the attention of the general assembly to the fact that it is in danger of mixing up our voting regulations. It says essary to leave one on eart their affairs, if necessary. amendment permitting the use of the voting machine, and several of the largest cities of the state have already adopted it. Now the legislature, or at least the house, passes with hardly any opposition a bill that the Austra-lian ballot shall be effective in this state after next January."

There does not appear to be any real good reason for this constant tinkering of our voting laws. The simple ever devised, and create as little confusion among the electors as any form now in use. The Australian blanket ballot is no improvement, and The Register is right when it asks: 'Tr the house in league with the makers that "The Australian ballot will be splendld means of driving the peop adoption of machines."

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT.

The resolution of congress submita proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the levy of a federal in-crease tax, was sent to the house of the general assembly by Governor-Weeks on Thursday, and was referred to the committee on federal relations.

There is nothing new about such a tax, and it is a means of raising revenue which is popular with the people, for the simple reason that they cannot services should not be taxed as well as a similar value in property, which cannot be concealed. No tax operates perfectly, hence the inability to learn of the incomes of citizens and fully and justly tax them all is no The fact that by final investment the larger part of this money becomes subject to a tax levy of some kind, is no argument against the measure. It is a republican measure and hould have the support of a republican legislature. It is to be hoped that the Connecticut legislature will that the Connecticut legislature will support the amendment by adopting the resolution. It is a fair and just tax and The Bulletin knows of no reason why the resolution should not be passed that the way may be made logal to tax incomes if necessary.

THE MARK IN DINGLEY'S HAT. Everybody cannot live up to the principles of protection when they believe in it any more than they can live up to their religious principles. The tariff has always been a nettling issue among congressmen. We all remember Jerry Simpson of Kansas, the sockless representative, an agitator of more than ordinary vim. Well, the Kansas City Journal has this, among other reminiscences being printed by him.

She has chosen a good city to terminate her walk in, and she will find on her arrival a cool atmosphere and plenty of entertainment. Connecticut will be interested enough to note when Mrs. Schneider passes through on her way to "the Hub."

This seems to be an unusually good season for toads. There are more in the garden this year than I ever saw before. Someone has said that five toads equal in service a hired man. A score of them make me feel that I cmploy hired help. Some toads are all spots and appetite and their rotundity shows how industrious they have been. They do not stop eating until their skins are tight. Neither the dog nor the cats venture to bite them. They do not look inviting for company or for food. They are said to be capable of answering to a name like a dog, and the Rev. Mr. Wood, the English naturalist, had one that answered to the name of Emma. No one can tell just how long a toad lives. Some found in water rocks are believed to have lived unfold ages. Nothing about a toad gives its age away. It sits and winks like an owl, and that is all you know about it.

Man likes to go and sit by the sen in summer where the hot sands are fanned by the breezes from off shore. It is not so cool there as at the mountains—the sand is often so hot near the beach at noonday that it will scorch hare feet; but there is a myster? Libout the sea as there, is about the same as there, is about the same as there, is about the same way it is the streets are going.

A clever device this is, but of all the highways in the world only a very few need to be set apart for travel in one distributed the same way—it moans as no mortal case. It takes on color like a mirror and sheds it as a tree sheds rain. Every fifth wave is said by fishermen to be a major seems to be the rule. Why? To be alone upon a long reach of beach awes the bravest man. There is a look saying of the Japanese that "the see has a soul and hears!" AT THE SIGN OF THE WISTERIA

She seated hersif, motioning him to a chair. A tinkle of ice in thin glasses announced the approach of a gentle looking woman who, without a word, deposited refreshments upon a low willow table. From her belt hung a small writing pad and a pencil. The girl wrote something in reply, and then retired to a discreet distance and became absorbed in reading. A deaf and dumb woman, the companion of this lovely girl! He-dreaded the moment that would send him away.

Burke was pressing the good lady's hands in his, "Give me your blessing, Aunt Fanny: I shall win her if I can!"

Just as the gang plank was being hauled in, a tall, athletic looking youth, wearing a bit of wistaria in his cost, sprang aboard. He came to her side, where she stood by the rail clinging affectionately to the arm of her grandfather.

"Help!" said Burke was pressing the good lady's hands in his,
"Give me your blessing, Aunt Fanny:

Those naturalists who raise our great native moths from the eggs are now looking for the Imperials and the Regais and the Lunss and the humming bird moth larvae to cage and to grow in captivity. It is quite easy to get the eggs are now looking for the moth larvae to cage and to grow in captivity. It is quite easy to get the eggs and the worms, but it is difficult to put the larvae at ease in capturity and to keep them hungry and healthy. These native exterpillars have their disappointments and their afflictions and their loss of appetits, and when the worst happens the native as much patience, tact and judgment as a select of the state of the common that it would be come cosmopolitan. It is not strange that it is only by keeping a broad of caterpillars healthy and hungry that the best of results can be attained. I once grew a foreign pink-winged moth that I was assured would eat nothing but sweet postato foliage upon fresh like leaves, and it was one of my greatest subprises as well as easiest tasks in this line. There is much to be learned in this field.
